It will capture the numbers of keyboard keys pressed and the position of the cursor on the computer screen. It also stores the name of the file that was being used. This software will work with any PC that has a keyboard and an active internet connection. You can use it to spy on friends, employees, and students at school or college. You can also keep an eye on your children and pets. If you're looking for a program that can monitor employees then look elsewhere - the keylogger that we have introduced is the software that you need. Simply choose the program and then the number of users and individuals that can be monitored. You can even choose the duration that the log is kept for. The main advantage of using this software is that it is highly portable. You do not need to worry about loading it onto the PC since it is a self-contained application.

It can be used on any computer that has a keyboard and an active internet connection. There is also an option to have the application run quietly in the background. Computer Monitor Keystrokes from a Win98/ME/2000 computer will be collected if the password is not set. Keystrokes from a WinXP/2003 computer are always collected. The program will display a screen shot of every keystroke you type. You can run the program without installing, and it will be fully configured on first start. The program uses the 'Stealth Mode' technique to stay completely invisible to the user. The screen shots are small and can be easily hidden in the task bar, so you can run the program on your desktop without anyone knowing. The keystrokes can be collected and saved to encrypted log files, and the logs can be sent to an email address at a given interval. All the keystrokes from the last log file are stored in an archive file, so you can go back and view the keystrokes and passwords. All web pages you visit and load will be cached, and can be viewed offline. You can save complete screen shots of every web page you visit. You can monitor the computer and the Internet while you are away. If the computer reboots, or the power is turned off, it will be fully set back to the way it was last time you opened the program. Here's a demonstration of the program after it's first startup: IMPORTANT NOTE: If the language selected is not English, program settings may not be retained after next startup. To fix this, ensure the "Auto-Adjust Program

Settings" option is selected during installation. What's New in Version 1.24: [?] Added Spanish language support. [?] Fixed a crash in Internet Explorer 7 with firefox add-ons. [?] Modified the code to work with Linux [?] Fixed a server-side issue that was causing keystrokes to not be captured. [?] Several small bug fixes and code enhancements. [?] Added more information to the About dialog. [?] Added more information to the Help dialog. [?] Icons have been updated. [?] Changed the default background color to be a darker gray, but the program still looks good in most colors. [?] A lot of code optimization. Note: Computer Monitor Keylogger is an enhancement to an existing desktop software application, not an entirely new program. If you already have the original desktop program, you already have the source code. Since the source code is not distributed with Computer Monitor Ke
