Records of the University of Glasgow

Through the early 1900s, there existed in the University of Glasgow a large series of registers that contained records of members of University

College, students,

librarians and staff,

graduates and senior members of staff, and all those who had anything to do with the University, or played any active part in its activity. These records represented the first attempt to assemble a complete and accurate record of those who had passed through the University. As well as providing a record of the names, including details such as the father's name, address, occupation, and sometimes photographs, certificates and degrees, they provided details of the undergraduate course studied, the results of examinations, and the awarding of degrees. The records have survived because the same institution which maintained the registers also maintained them in a state of good order. In 1997, the University of Glasgow embarked on a major project to digitally recreate, scan and digitise these records. They are now freely available online. To view the digital images, go to University Microfilms and Special Collections. Record types Antiviral resistance of HBV during long-term lamivudine therapy.

Antiviral resistance is an important clinical issue for hepatitis B virus (HBV) infection. The aim of this study was to evaluate antiviral resistance in patients with chronic hepatitis B who had been treated with lamivudine (LAM) for $>$ or $=2$ years. The presence of antiviral resistance was analyzed in 50 patients who were treated with LAM for 2-22 years (median 7.5 years). The mean age of the patients was 56 years (range: 40-76 years). The median pre-treatment hepatitis B e antigen

were sequenced to determine patterns 1cb139a0ed
