* Prepress. This course covers the fundamentals of image editing, including colors, contrast, and sharpness. It focuses on photo-editing techniques for getting the best out of your photographs. * Photo Editing. This course covers photo color, the steps involved in cropping, and resizing and retouching photographs. By the end of the course, you will be familiar with all of the features of Photoshop in a hands-on environment. # For photo editing, there's also Snapseed If you want to get started with photo editing, or if you prefer a more user-friendly alternative to the more advanced Photoshop features, you may want to use Snapseed. It's a free photo editor that comes preinstalled on iOS devices as well as Android tablets and smartphones. It uses a simple interface that mimics a camera viewfinder, and its sliders for color and brightness are easy to use. You can access nearly all of the Photoshop features and tools, but all tools are accessed on the right side of the viewfinder. If you'd rather not use Snapseed, you have other options to create a basic edit. You can use the following methods: * PhotoPaint: This is a basic photo editor that comes preinstalled on iOS devices. * Pixlr: This free editor is similar to Snapseed and has a few drawbacks. For example, it doesn't offer much in the way of filters or advanced options. * PicMonkey: The website offers free photo editing tools on the desktop, on mobile devices (Android and iOS), and via its Snapchat Lens features. You can also access these tools via the iPhone or iPad. * Pixlr and Pixlr Editor Plus: These apps also have free video editing tools and the ability to import video from your camera or device. * Adobe Stock's free editing tools: Adobe also offers free editing tools that can be used to enhance and simplify your photos and videos; see the Free Websites and Apps for Video, Photo, and Document Editions sidebars later in this chapter for a list of sites that have these tools. # Using Photoshop on mobile devices Although you can use Photoshop on your computer, you can also use it on your mobile device as long as you own an Apple device, such as the iPhone, iPad, or Mac. You can share, backup,

Q: How to select all header fields in Customized XHR with chrome devtools? I want to use customized XHR with chrome devtools. I set the dataType to 'json' and type of response to'script'. In chrome devtools I can see the response header if I print out data.response. But can I select all header fields in the inspector? I find a solution with in Devtools: I set url: chrome://devtools/content/requestDispatcher.js to then I select a request with the selector and can choose the response header in content. Is there a similar solution to select all header fields in customized XHR? A: No there is no selector for all headers, you can add it as a Feature request here: Down home cooking What's to like about the South other than our food? Well, fried catfish at the airport, a small town vibe and far better barbecue, according to tour guides. The spot for all that stuff is I-10 just north of Shreveport, La. About the only thing other than that, of course, is the music. See, that's where the big beef comes in. Two of the country's best down-home acts are barreling toward Norman, Okla., in just a few hours, and the place is overflowing with music fans. Some of them will inevitably spill outside the Cotton Palace to catch a glimpse of Eric Church and the Dixie Chicks, who could not resist performing at the place. "I never really knew what a Dixie Chicks concert would be like," said local trombonist Jen Allred. "I haven't ever seen one before, so I guess I'm pretty excited." The final Saturday of their tour of the Midwest should prove to be a memorable one for Millie Chris, Natalie Maines and their band of "Chickettes," as the local media has dubbed them. Nearly 4,000 fans turned out last year to see the Dixie Chicks play at the same venue in Nokomis. Record-setting ticket sales for the concert proved that the country music fans of the region don't have
